Dear Friends,

We're excited to share with you some exciting news. As we've adjusted to life in the wake — and throes — of Covid-19, however, our team has realized that Transformation Yoga Project still has work to do, and have decided that rather than shuttering at the end of next year, we are instead focused on recalibration of how and where we may be of service. We have found great joy and satisfaction in working with the organizations we've met during this journey, and will continue to provide mentorship and programming for their teams as they attend to their communities. We are also working to re-enter the justice space in order to provide trauma-sensitive yoga and meditation for incarcerated people in the Greater Philadelphia area.

We feel particularly called to recalibrate after news of rampant injustice in the prison system during the pandemic, including extended lockdowns, solitary confinement, and inadequate access to personal protective equipment. We believe that the trauma-sensitive programming that TYP provides is more needed than ever among the population of incarcerated people.

What does this mean for 2022 and beyond?

We're still working out exactly what this will look like, but we will have a smaller footprint, as we focus primarily on serving the justice community. We'll continue disbursement of funding to like minded organizations, as well as partnering with other service providers.

We are grateful for your continued support, both of us and the organizations we've partnered with to continue service in this capacity.

Sincerely,

TYP Founder Mike Huggins & the TYP Team
